

Joseph Hooker's life!

Joseph Hooker was born-and-bred in a small town called Halsworth. It was (1817). As he grew up, he first became a botanist and also tried his hardest to be director at Kew gardens.

After a while, he had finally leveled up to be director at Kew gardens. ~~Also~~ Also he was son of William Jackson Hooker and a good friend of Charles Darwin. Despite being director at Kew, Joseph Hooker planned to go on quests to discover different plants.

He was imprisoned by the Raja's; ^{he} he went to far from the himalayas.